A WOMAN IN FU

Our school doesn't bear the name of its founders, but of the foundation: Rhode Island, the place itself that looked to seafarers like the shape of the Grecian isle of Rhodos. Our RISD museum has a small painting by Alonzo Chappel called The Landing of Roger Williams. It depicts the friendship of the pilgrim in his canoe-like rowboat with the Narragansett natives greeting him with peace pipes. Rhode Island was the first colony to declare liberty of the soul and the mysterious equality of all spirits. Here where you have studied your arts and crafts you have also absorbed by osmosis the local lessons of the elegance of tolerance and good will. "What Cheer, Netop" meant "Hello, Friend."

The street names compose a prose poem. The Benefit trail meets Benevolent, among friendship and good hope. Much can be gleaned from the familiar pathways we take for granted upon our creative campus comings and goings. The crowning glory of the College Building, our quietly quality library, wears on its outer walls bas-relief images of the liberal arts with its scrolls of learning, its astrolabe of adventure and exploration, and its beakers of experiment. And on the opposite, northern exterior, of the studio world with its looms, models and sculptures. And at the main entrance on Main near the river, the winged Muse guarding and inspiring the fine artist with an easel.

Across from the College Building obelisks and fountains recall our patriotic pledges for peace. The famous Four Freedoms, eloquently established as hopes at the dawn of the Duration, guarantee freedoms of speech and religion, and freedoms from fear and want. They will be inscribed on benches at the edges of our RISD domain.

As I tap these thoughts, your campus is moving. The library is crossing the river into a gilded bank lobby on bustling Westminster Street, where schools replace department stores. Our true pow-wow meeting ground for our rendezvous has been the parking lot, from which we scatter to the various structures of our Oz.

As adopted sons and daughters of Rhode Island and its vision within the School of Design, you restore and redeem us with your own wizardry; you take the campus there's and was with you, before it vanishes like a mirage and a memory into something else.

You bring back its benevolence and benefits whenever you visit and make us whole.

Under the full noon sun, the boy's neck became hotter. The sweat rolled onto his collar. He yanked off his shirt and waved it around his shoulders to dry it out while keeping the circling flies from landing on him. The touch of the drying mud path beneath his bare feet reminded him of the feel of the putty his father had used to fix the windows in the barn. Closer to the main road under the trees, he slowed down to feel the temporary coolness of the shade. In the tree-softened light he stopped to look back once again at the farm house, growing distant along the fence line. In his mind he could see every board of the porch, every window and door, every room. He knew he could hear, if he really wanted to, all those soft and loud voices that he had absorbed in this place...

This short introduction to a much longer story is about one person's transition from the world he knows to the world he doesn't. From the familiar to the unknown, the boy is beginning to see his past and his future together. All the boy's senses awaken as familiar experiences become new ones driven by his intention to leave home. He is breaking new ground, so to speak, leaving behind a community of familiar experiences and relationships. Perhaps the community he is leaving has given him support for his journey.

You are in the same place now as a graduate of RISD. You are making the transition from known territory toward your own future, leaving behind a family of faculty and friends who shared the past several years with you. Now many of them are about to speed on to new horizons as well. What will happen to this community after you've gone? What will happen to you after you leave?

RISD will always welcome new members to our community on their passage into the creative world at large. We are a selective family here, mostly self-selected, in that we all want to be near creative people and to develop our own talents and skills. Within the borders of RISD's community, we protect and nurture each other, so that we can grow together as artists and designers.

RISD is a locus of activity centered in Providence that attracts people from all over the world to learn together in this exceptional environment. We also leave this place to study elsewhere in the world alone or together. We cover all the continents with our learning opportunities. During these times, we make intense friendships that can last a lifetime.

We are a community of individuals, tied together by our love of making things, our deep commitment to the arts and design, and our passion for quality in whatever form it exists.

You will forever be a part of this expanding family—this RISD community of creative souls. We are all destined to create new worlds in whatever we see and make and do. The network of "relatives" you now share can avail you of exceptional resources, from ideas to people to moral support. There are now nearly 40 RISD alumni chapters around the world with whom to connect wherever your opportunities take you. And your faculty—your home bodies—are here for you from whatever distance you need to reach them.

What binds us all together is the mission to make the world better, not just for our generation, but for those who follow us. We must promote the values of a RISD education toward sustainability of nature and humanity, toward world peace and tolerance, and toward improving educational opportunities for all. In each and every project, we must practice these principles.

Our responsibility as creative people is to assure that humanity's better instincts are made manifest, over, above and against those negative forces that would destroy us. We've learned that there are costly boundaries we cannot cross—of war, of greed, and of hatred. Artists and designers never take boundaries for granted. We preserve our right to challenge these limits to insure the betterment of humanity.

Good luck and Godspeed.

"Once there was a very drab village. So drab, in fact, that the road leading to it was overgrown from lack of visitors and interest. There wasn't much to do there, especially for a little boy named Applemando. A boy who loved to dream. For him dreams were magic chariots pulled through his mind by galloping hues of color. For him, dreaming was a way of life. He dreamt so much of the time that the villagers began to talk." —Applemando's Dreems by Patria Polacco

I learned to whistle by a song in a Yogi Bear TV movie. Yogi's girlfriend taught him how to whistle through song. I spent the entire song blowing air through my lips. Singing montage on river, eyes meet, birds, pink flowers. I ran up the stairs of my basement blowing wildly.

Prayer to a Tree at Nightingale.

Blue hearted trunk, stand fast for me • Do not fear the ghosts of the world • Or Andrew's thumping booted feet • Watch over squirrel houses and our hearts • Look lovingly upon roofs shooting fireworks • Thou maker of perennial love • Lift up our eyes when it comes • Though my body races to the western sea • Let it rest on your roots inside of me.

"In the clearing stands a boxer, and a fighter by his trade • And he carries the reminders of every glove that laid him down or cut him • 'til he cried out in his anger and his shame • I am leaving, I am leaving, but the fighter still remains • Yes he still remains."
—Simon & Garfunkel

The past five years have truly been an unforgettable journey • Filled with lessons on life I didn't know I would encounter • And at the end of it all I can say it was all worth it • Every moment I take as a lesson learned and move forward • Without the support of my extraordinary parents • I would not have been able to have had such an experience • I never would have made such a solid collection of friends • Especially those of you who have made even the hardest times bearable • And the best times more than anyone could have asked for • All of which has made me into a stronger and more defined person.

"Well I'm on my way • I don't know where I'm going • I'm on my way."

A wise man once said, "He Who Hesitates, Masturbates." Beyond the sexual implications, I think what this really means is: If you don't grab every oppurtunity that you are given, then you'll really end up missing out on life, and possibly playing with yourself.

"Here is the test of wisdom • Wisdom is not fully tested in schools • Wisdom cannot be pass'd from one having it to another not having it • Wisdom is of the soul, it is not susceptible of proof, is its own proof • Applies to all stages and objects and qualities and is content • Is the certainty of the reality and immortality of things, and the excellence of things • Something there is in the float of the sight of things that provokes it out of the soul. Now I re-examine philosophies and religions • They may prove well in lecture-rooms, yet not prove at all under the spacious clouds [illegible] along the landscape and flowing current[illegible] Here is realization • Here is a man tallied—he realizes here what he has in him • The past, the future, majesty, love—if they are vacant for you, you are vacant of them." —Song of the Open Road by Walt Whitman

"Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent, a new nation, conceived in Liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field, as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But, in a larger sense, we can not dedicate—we can not consecrate—we can not hallow—this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it, far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion—that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain—that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom—and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth." —Abraham Lincoln

"You've got to find what you love. And that is as true for your work as it is for your lovers. Your work is going to fill a large part of your life, and the only way to be truly satisfied is to do what you believe is great work. And the only way to do great work is to love what you do. If you haven't found it yet, keep looking. Don't settle. As with all matters of the heart, you'll know when you find it. And, like any great relationship, it just gets better and better as the years roll on. So keep looking until you find it. Don't settle." —Steve Jobs

I'll miss you tragically, and laugh full-heartedly at our memories, like the drama queen I am. Para a minha familia, obrigado por terem feito de mim uma pessoa cheia de amor, por toda a força que vocês me deram a vida inteira, por terem me ensinado como ser uma boa pessoa, e por terem me amado mesmo quando não o estava sendo. "Therefore, since we are surrounded by so great a cloud of witnesses, let us also lay aside every weight and sin which clings so closely, and let us run with endurance the race that is set before us, looking to Jesus, the founder and perfecter of our faith, who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is seated at the right hand of the throne of God."
